Creative and Business Writing Services

KissaFrog Creations Website

Even if you are a newbie online, you have probably already heard that, in order to succeed, there are certain things that are essential. First, you need a site that has some pizzazz so your visitors will stick around long enough to see what your site is about. Second, you need a sales letter that grabs them by the shirt collar and pulls them in. It must tell your audience how your product benefits them, how your services will change their lives or how your membership site will give them a virtual place where they belong.

If you're missing that sales letter, or an information product that rocks your socks, this is your chance to get something written for you at 20% off my regular fees.

I've been a professional writer for over twenty years. I started out as a newspaper columnist, worked in the business field and have ghost written two books for the mainstream press. I have created five ebooks and am currently working on bringing out several new packages in different niches.

To claim your discount, simply email me at beth.ferree@gmail.com or visit my site at <http://www.bethferree.com> and fill out the online form.

Please make sure you reference how you heard of me when you contact me so I can give you an accurate quote for your needs.

Thank you, and I look forward to working with you!
